KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — A Japanese housewife has become the first woman to reach the top of Mt. Everest, the world's highest mountain.

The Nepalese Foreign Ministry made the announcement today, and also said that four more men have been reported dead in the Himalayas.

The housewife, 35-year-old Junko Tabei, a member of a expedition of 15 Japanese women, reached the summit of the 29,028-foot mountain on Friday, the ministry said.

The women took the south-east ridge route, used by Sir Edmund Hillary and Sherpa Tenzing Norgay, the first to scale Everest in 1953.

Everest, known locally as Chomolungma, or "mother goddess of the earth," has been climbed by 35 men over the past 22 years.

The ministry said Mrs. Tabei was escorted by a male Sherpa guide, Ang Tenzing, one of nine male Sherpas who accompanied the women to their 24,885-foot camp.

Mrs. Tabei, deputy leader of the expedition and mother of a three-year-old girl, told reporters before leaving Katmandu for Everest: "Women are not so strong as men. But we can also climb the mountain slowly. Now I think only about climbing. Let us not talk about success."

Five years ago she scaled the 24,800-foot Mt. Annapurna III in her first conquest of a Himalayan peak.

The Nepalese government said two Japanese men who scaled the previously unconquered Dhaulagiri-4 in the Himalayas were lost and presumably killed while descending from the 25,134-foot mountain.

Shiro Kawaji and Etsuro Yasuda radioed shortly after leaving the summit May 9 that they were having trouble and that "we are very tired," the announcement said. The next morning searchers found what appeared to be their bodies 3,300 feet below the summit.

The Foreign Ministry announced that two more members of the British-Nepalese joint army expedition climbing the Nuptse peak were thought to have died on the 25,850-foot-high mountain which claimed two lives last week.

The deaths forced expedition leader Maj. L.W. Fleming to abandon the attempt to scale the mountain, the statement said.

Spokesmen said Lt. D.A.J. Brister and British Gurkha soldier Pasang Tamang were presumed to have been killed Wednesday, but their bodies have not been found. The two men have been missing since they began descending to the base camp after a heavy snow storm prevented them from making a second assault.

Of the 15 expeditions in the area recently, nine have been Japanese. Only three reached their objective — the women's team, the ill-fated pair on Dhaulagiri-4 and a lone Japanese who reached the top of the 24,987-foot Dhaulagiri-5 on May 1.

Thailand demands U.S. apology

By The Associated Press
The Mayaguez sailed into Singapore today as thousands of students in Bangkok hung Uncle Sam in effigy and Thai authorities demanded that the United States apologize for using Thai bases to stage the armed rescue of the freighter.

Capt. Charles T. Miller of Mountain View, Calif., said he and his 39-man crew had been released by their Cambodian captors while being returned to the ship Thursday so that they could radio Bangkok to ask that U.S. air attacks be called off.

Miller said the Cambodians transferred to another boat and left the Americans to proceed on to the ship.

"We were worried that if we were not recognized by our own planes we would be blown out of the water," Miller said. "We took off our white shirts and white underwear, anything white and put them up on bamboo as flags ... As luck would have it none of the fighter jets overflew us.

"But a radar reconnaissance plane flew over and wiggled its wings. We all knew we were identified."

At the U.S. Embassy in Bangkok, thousands of students lashed a 12-foot effigy of Uncle Sam to the gate and ripping off sections of the American Eagle seal, to which they affixed a shower shoe in the supreme insult of Thai culture.

Thailand, worried about future relations with its new Communist neighbors, objected to the dispatch of more than 1,000 U.S. Marines to Thailand and the use of Thai bases to launch the rescue of the Mayaguez.

Foreign Minister Chatichai Choonhavan demanded a formal U.S. apology.

"Go to hell bad American. This land is not for you."

A number of protesters perched on top of the walls and the main gate, but none tried to enter.

The Mayaguez captain also said U.S. jet fighters gassed and strafed the crew during unsuccessful efforts to prevent a fishing boat from carrying them to Kompong Som on the Cambodian mainland on Wednesday.

Women must serve too, judge rules

BUTTE, Mont. (AP) — A military draft, if there is to be one, must apply equally to both men and women, a federal judge has ruled.

"I personally am an admirer of femininity, but the law does not permit us governmentally to protect women paternalistically so as to relieve them from the duties, obligations and privileges of citizenship," U.S. District Court Judge W.D. Murray said Friday.

In Washington, Peter Straub, general counsel of the Selective Service System, said the U.S. Supreme Court has upheld on three occasions lower court rulings that draft laws are not sexually discriminatory.

"I'm sure the Department of Justice will appeal," Straub said.

Legislation limiting the draft to male citizens denies them the equal protection of the law," Murray said in his ruling. "All citizens, male and female, must be subject to the draft on an equal basis."

Murray said the military draft, as it is administered now, is unconstitutional on grounds it is sexually discriminatory.

The judge rejected the government's argument that sexual classification in draft laws is based on national security. "We have had too much recent experience to allow the mere claim of national security to stand without challenge," the judge said.

The judge said "there simply is no basis for concluding that all or even a significant number of women are incapable of serving in the military. This is true even assuming they would be placed in combat roles."

The ruling was issued in a case involving George Kenneth Reiser, 22, of Bozeman, Mont., who was indicted by a grand jury Nov. 30, 1973, for refusing induction into the armed forces.

Reiser was denied conscientious objector status in 1972. He was ordered to report for induction but refused, said James Goetz, Reiser's attorney.

Although actual conscription has ended, Goetz said the Selective Service System continues to register 18-year-olds for military duty and still conducts lotteries.

The government has emergency standby power whereby those registered for the draft can be called into active duty, he noted.

Mayaguez crew gassed, hit by shrapnel

SINGAPORE (AP) — The captain of the Mayaguez said today that he and his crew members were gassed and hit by shrapnel from shells fired by U.S. warplanes trying to prevent the Cambodians from taking them to the mainland in a fishing boat.

However, he said without the Marine and Air Force actions the crew would not have been freed.

Pentagon officials in Washington had no immediate comment on the account of the rescue given by Capt. Charles T. Miller, of Mountain View, Calif., when the Mayaguez arrived here.

He said he and the 39 crew members all were burned by fumes as jets twice sprayed the fishing boat with noxious gas as the boat headed toward the Cambodian seaport of Kompong Som.

Miller, 62, said three crewmen were struck by shrapnel as the U.S. planes attacked for about four hours.

The captain spoke to newsmen about an hour after the Mayaguez docked at Semabang containerport.

The captain grew red-eyed and his voice broke as he spoke of the U.S. servicemen who died in the rescue of his crew.

The Mayaguez sailed into Singapore with U.S. flags flying and its decks still loaded with the cargo it carried when it was captured by the Cambodians on Monday and held for three days.

"People were being killed to save me," said the captain. "Without our air force, without our Marines, I don't think this crew would be standing before you today."

Miller said the U.S. fighters attacked the fishing boat while it was taking the captured crew to Kompong Som from an island he called Kas Trang on Tuesday.

Miller said the planes first strafed within 150 yards of the fishing boat, then moved to within 70 or 80 yards and finally came as close as 10 feet.

He said five Thai fishermen, piloting the boat, tried once to turn it away from the mainland, but Cambodian guards held guns to their heads and forced them to proceed despite the heavy fire.

The Americans had been ordered into the boat from the Mayaguez.

"I don't blame the planes for

Boston march set for integration

BOSTON (AP) — Thousands of persons backing school integration were expected to march to Boston Common today, passing within blocks of a convention of anti-busing forces.

"We're going to say to Boston and through Boston to the rest of the world that segregation in public schools is dead," Thomas I. Atkins, president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People's local branch, told reporters Friday.

Organizers forecast as many as 35,000 marchers from throughout the country would take part. They warned extremist groups who advocate violence not to take part.

Anti-busing sentiment, sometimes marked by violence, has been high since court-ordered busing of school children began here last fall.

On May 10, U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr. issued a second-phase desegregation plan for next fall. The plan calls for still more busing.

Atkins said he did not anticipate any trouble with members of an antibusing group, Restore Our Alienated Rights.

ROAR is holding its national convention in Boston this weekend and the desegregation march was scheduled to pass within two blocks of the ROAR convention site.

"There is no indication ROAR has lost its senses and will push a confrontation," Atkins said.

Telegraph to close Monday afternoon

In memory of Arnold V. Lund, general manager of the newspaper division of the B. F. Shaw Printing Co., who died Thursday, the offices of the Dixon Evening Telegraph will be closed from 1 to 3 p.m. Monday.

The offices will reopen at 3 p.m. and remain open until 5 p.m.

Disaster strikes, CD personnel act

One fatality was recorded in a simulated disaster drill at the Anchor Coupling parking lot this morning. The simulated drill, sponsored as part of the Lee County Civil Defense program, involved more than 50 persons from the police department, fire department, hospital staff and students who were the victims of a fiery explosion at the Anchor Coupling site. An Ogle County Deputy and several students from Ogle County also participated in the disaster drill. Below, Dixon Rural Firefighter Ed Gaul, Dixon City Fire Captain Clifford Henley, and Dixon Rural Volunteer Kevin Lally, from left, check over a victim of the explosion and bandage protruding intestines. Center, Lally and Gaul load a patient in the back of the Dixon Rural fire car for transportation to KSB Hospital, while Fire Chief Ed Voss watches. At right, hospital personnel check injuries of the victims, sorting out the major injuries and directing them to waiting emergency rooms or surgery. (Telegraph Photos)

Arnold V. Lund

ARNOLD V. LUND

For thirty-eight years we have worked and vacationed together, without an unpleasant word, except arguments on politics.

Nearly every morning Arnold stopped in my office for a general discussion and usually a thought on the political situation in Illinois and the United States. This ended up in a good row. Then Lund finished the argument by saying, "Well, I've got you all stirred up, so guess I'll get to work," and out he sauntered.

Working, fishing, hunting, with a trip now and then, was so much fun with my dear friend.

He will rest in peace with many thoughts of kindness from his host of friends.

His dear wife, children and grandchildren will miss him greatly, but they will always have such fond memories of a good and faithful husband and family guide. They have a heritage of excellent character.

Beware of coming boom

In the two decades to 1974 industrial production in the world's 24 richest capitalist countries — members of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development — rose at an annual average rate of 5.5 per cent. Britain notched up only about half that average rate, and Japan scored double it, but all countries prospered until the 1974-75 slump.

Last year OECD industrial production fell. By the end of the year, the fall had accelerated to over 15 per cent at an annual rate — almost as bad as the 19 per cent drop in 1931. For 1975 we have only January production figures for Germany (down another 3.5 per cent compared with last October-December), France and Britain (each of them broadly unchanged); but February figures are available for America and Japan, each showing an extraordinary 9 per cent drop from last October-December (think of that at an annual rate — over 40 per cent). These five countries together account for 80 per cent of OECD industrial production. Even if no further drops are shown anywhere throughout OECD when full February and March figures are available — and of course some will be — it is already certain that OECD industrial production will have fallen even faster than 15 per cent, at an annual rate, in the first quarter of 1975. This is now a major slump.

The bigger the slump, the bigger the boom. This grandmother of all postwar recessions will bring in tow the grandfather of all postwar expansions. Here is why. The 5.5 per cent a year average rate of growth in industrial production from 1955 to 1975 was no accident. It reflected the approximate long-term growth of output potential in the industrial world. Output and productivity were steadily increased by technological advance and investment. An expanding labor supply helped, and so did shifts in employment from backward to advanced sectors of each economy. One can argue whether the trend rate in 1975-85 will grow a bit (because of accelerating technology) or drop a bit, but it is clear that over the coming three to four years it is unlikely to change very much. Down to, say, 4 per cent at worst.

The growth in potential output (or capacity) measures the rate at which actual output must grow if any given level of employment and capacity utilization is to be maintained. While actual output is growing by less than potential output, unemployment will increase and plant will become idle. Even when actual growth catches up with potential, it will take up to a year before unemployment stops rising. Before unemployment can be reduced and idle plant can be brought back into use, actual production must, for a time, rise faster than potential output.

The slump is opening the gap between actual and potential output. How fast? Assume (1) maintained 5.5 per cent annual growth in potential; (2) no further fall in OECD industrial production after this month; (3) steady recovery from the middle of this year to the long-term 5.5 per cent industrial growth rate by its end — then 1976 will begin with a 15 per cent gap between actual and potential output.

The gap will not be precisely 15 per cent. The growth potential output could have slowed down; that would reduce it a little. The assumption that the slump will bottom out in the middle of this year could be optimistic; that would increase it. On balance, the best guess is that the end-1975 gap will be above 15 per cent, but that governments will by then be reacting frenetically against it.

Most governments have already turned their policies around to fight against recession. Monetary policy has been eased and interest rates have tumbled. America's expected budget deficit seems to grow bigger with each news dispatch. But deflation takes time to have its effects, and it is working against a strong recessionary tide. The tide now seems unlikely to turn until 1976.

Even if it does turn before that, a double-figure gap between potential and actual industrial production is certain by the end of this year. Governments will want to close it, because (1) unemployment is already high and will go on rising well into 1976 even if output turns up before then, and because (2) inflation seems to be receding (except in Britain) and the commodity price slump will help it along.

The rise in unemployment is likely to set the pace for most governments' policies, especially in countries like the United States which will now probably enter its election year of 1976 with unemployment above 10 per cent. To get back to the 1955-74 average level of unemployment, OECD industrial production will need to spur by 15 per cent more than its normal 5.5 per cent annual growth trend. To do this in a single year would require 20 per cent growth; spread over two, 13 per cent in each year; and over three, 10 per cent a year. So far the sharpest world increase has been that of 1972-73, which doubled commodity prices in a year. Just to get partway back to pre-s slump levels of unemployment will require a 1972-73 sized boom. Going the whole way back will require the 1972-73 boom multiplied by three.

If countries march out of step into the boom, it will be slow-burning; if they march in step, it will explode, and next-boom inflation will be ratcheted up another 5-10 percentage points. Will they be in step? America and Germany are leading the way to reflation. Japan is holding fire, but probably not for long. The European countries with the fastest inflation and largest current account deficits, France, Italy and Britain, are also being slow to restimulate demand, but France and Britain were slow into the slump. On this reckoning, the upswing should gradually gain momentum during 1976. But remember, unemployment in most countries will still be rising.

Nobody foresaw the speed of the 1972-73 upswing. Few foresaw the severity of the 1974-75 world slump. But people learn. This world boom should be seen coming. This could influence governments against over-reflation — but it could also influence corporate and consumer confidence in a way which helps the boom along. Late 1976 to late 1977 looks like being a period of rapid expansion everywhere.

This 1977 boom may reproduce all the worst features of the previous one — a bigger commodity price explosion and so the return of domestic wage-push inflation. So far each successive bust after a boom has left inflation higher than before. The 1977 boom is very likely, in its turn, to breed another big slump. The international economy looks like becoming dangerously unstable. If the cycle is to be stopped, now is the time for governments to put their heads together to see what can be done about producing a controlled boom. It will be no good waiting until the damage has been done and then trying frantically to pick up the pieces. A world economic conference on control of the 1977 boom is needed this year.

The case against nuclear power

By FRANKLIN L. GAGE

All across America, citizens are using their common sense and a few basic facts to work for a halt to further nuclear power plant development and a shutdown of existing plants.

These citizens seem to understand that nuclear power is the only way to boil water to generate electricity that endangers the very viability of our planet, not only for us but for future generations as well. Even the very dirtiest coal plant can't claim that distinction.

During each year of "normal" operation, each and every one of the thousand large nuclear plants projected by the turn of the century will produce the radioactive equivalent of 1,000 Hiroshima weapons. And because this radioactive poison is so fiendishly toxic for the next 100,000 years and longer, it must be more than 99.99 per cent contained essentially forever. Escape of just 1 per cent in a fully developed nuclear economy with 1,000 plants would equal the release of 10,000 Hiroshima weapons annually.

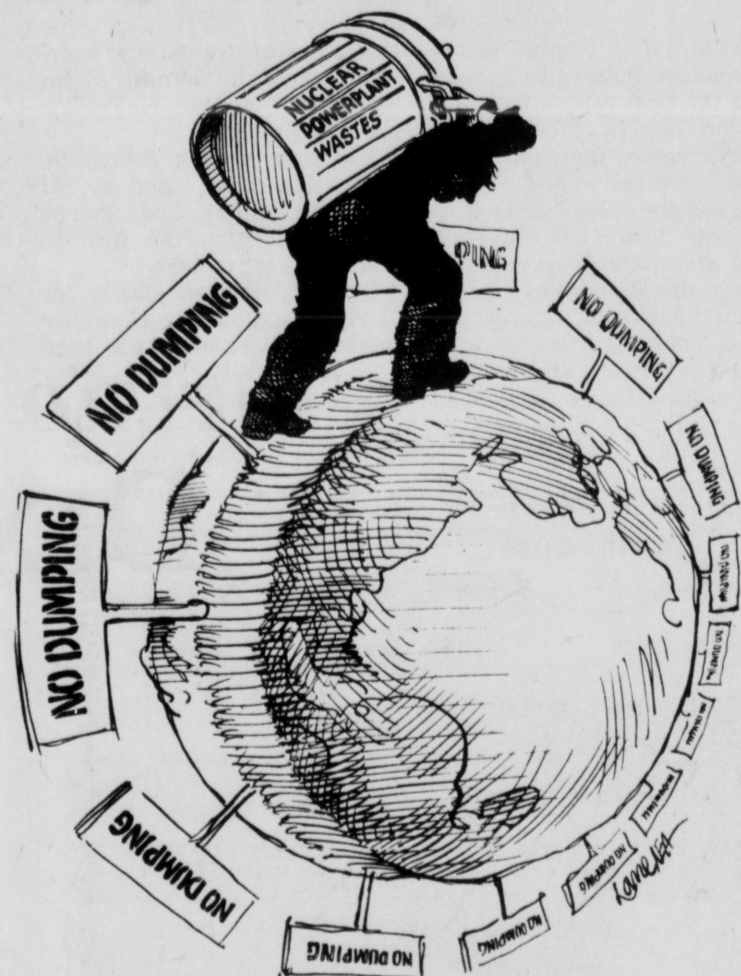

So a decision to "go nuclear" is a decision to trust the nuclear industry to be more than 99.99 per cent perfect. It hasn't been to date, and no other industry ever has either. How many even come close to 99 per cent? Yet failure to meet this requirement will result in a grotesquely, irreversibly contaminated planet.

Of all the poisons created by nuclear power, the most dangerous is probably plutonium, 400 pounds of which is produced each year per plant. It doesn't just go away — it takes 24,000 years for just half of it to decay. And it is a killer. Just one pound, evenly distributed, represents enough poison to produce nine billion human lung cancers.

The cancer hazard of plutonium is reason for sensible people to insist that nuclear power be stopped. But in addition, plutonium is the material from which nuclear weapons can be made. Just 20 pounds and the knowledge that can be found in popular encyclopedias and textbooks is all that is needed to produce a workable weapon. Hence, the introduction of nuclear power ushers in the age of private atomic bombs. Attempts to prevent theft and use of plutonium by blackmailers, terrorists, deranged persons, mobsters, etc. could instantly erase our civil liberties, and still fail to prevent the chaos of nuclear terrorism.

Unfortunately, you can't have nuclear power and not have radioactive waste, including plutonium.

The advocates of nuclear power argue that we need the energy. That is agreed. But nuclear fission is not the answer. Since nuclear power could only supply about 30 per cent of our demand by the turn of the century, a massive investment in non-nuclear technology is going to have to be made anyway. And clean solar energy is the obvious alternative to dangerous nuclear power.

Even now, despite efforts by industry and government to hold back the development of solar power systems, no new technology need be developed to replace the 2-3 per cent of our energy demand now met by nuclear power. All that is needed is mass production of solar equipment to bring costs down. Automobiles certainly weren't cost competitive either until mass production began.

Unfortunately, big industry and big government are presently committed to nuclear power, so citizen action to reverse that policy is urgently needed. Fighting nuclear power now could make a difference for centuries to come.

Tyranny in the schools

By DON OAKLEY

It reads like something out of "The Blackboard Jungle":

—According to the International Association of School Security Directors, robberies in the nation's schools jumped by 113 per cent from 1970-73; assault and battery was up 58 per cent; sex offenses 62 per cent; drug-related problems 81 per cent.

—The National Education Assn. reports that 64,000 teachers were physically attacked by students during the first half of the 1973-74 school year. Last year, about 244,000 teachers experienced malicious damage of their personal property by students, a 56 per cent increase over the previous year.

—More than 23 per cent of teachers polled in 1974 said that student violence against other students was a problem in their schools. This covered assaults and intimidation, stealing, damaging or destroying other students' personal property and riots.

—A recent estimate put the annual cost of school vandalism nationwide as high as $500 million.

Why? What is happening to — and in — our schools, which are supposedly preparing a new generation for decent and useful lives in society?

Much of it may be because the schools are mirrors of that very society, suggests James A. Harris, president of the National Education Assn. He cites five factors that may be responsible for the alarming increase in school violence and vandalism:

1. The loosening of close-knit community and family bonds through population growth, urbanization, mobility and advances in technology.

2. Increased alienation of youth as a result of the nation's current economic difficulties and disillusionment arising from such national tragedies as Watergate and Vietnam.

3. Alienation of students by inflexible and outmoded disciplinary and educational practices, and institutional inflexibility in meeting individual student needs.

4. A state of flux in the schools as a byproduct of efforts to eliminate discrimination and segregation.

5. And finally, students' observation that "violence is a fundamental way of life in our society."

No doubt there is much truth in all of these. There are, however, at least three other truths, and they are that 1) the more we have come to appreciate the role of environment in shaping the individual, the worse the problems of delinquency and crime have become, 2) that in any given school, whether in a rich district or a poor one, only a small fraction of children become involved in trouble and 3) the bully will always take advantage of the natural timidity of the law-abiding.

In one Midwestern school, for example, a mere 5 per cent of the student body had gradually rendered the school's smoke-filled lavatories off limits to all other students until administrators clamped down with a "potty patrol."

It may be time that we stopped beating our breasts over the faults, and failures of society and frankly admitted that for all our psychological and sociological enlightenment we simply do not know what causes delinquent behavior, whether in children or adults, that we simply do not possess perfect wisdom and compassion — but that we do know that unless energetic steps are taken we may witness the disintegration of both our schools and our societies.

Perhaps it is time we accepted the fact that the risk of "alienating" or infringing the "rights" of 5 per cent of the school population is far outweighed by the rights and needs of the other 95 per cent.

Certainly, any society that merely wrings its hands while permitting itself to be tyrannized by its children, especially a tiny minority of its children, would seem to stand in some sort of real peril.

Things Dixon talked about 25 YEARS AGO

The Flower and Fashion Show which opens tomorrow at 2 p.m. in Loveland Community House promises to be the best yet. There is the addition of a junior section this year for young enthusiasts in the community. There will also be a room devoted to giving the gardener information and help with his problems.

Dixon's board of local improvements adopted a resolution Tuesday night approving a call for bids to construct a sanitary sewer system in the Logan Avenue area. Board members said bids probably would be opened at the council meeting June 6.

50 YEARS AGO

Work on the paving of the Black Hawk Trail from Dixon to Rockford is beginning to be apparent just east of the city. A force of workmen has been busy for several days installing cement culverts from the east limits of the city to the cement plant.

Under the auspices of the Ladies Rest Room Committee a home-talent production will be given in the Dixon Theater on Thursday night, May 28. The show, entitled "The Little Lady," is considered one of the best musical-comedy shows ever written for local production.

'Grade inflation'

Either college students are smarter than they used to be or there are other reasons, but at least one college has abolished the traditional Dean's List because "it is no longer an indicator of academic excellence."

The School is Dickinson College in Carlisle, Pa., where in the semester just ended more than 500 students out of a student body of 1,600 had a grade average high enough to qualify for the Dean's List.

"With that many people on it," said Dean George J. Allan, "we didn't feel it was an honor. So we eliminated it."

"Grade inflation" is a phenomenon on other campuses. For example, at Dartmouth last spring 41.1 per cent of the grades received by graduating seniors were A and another 40 per cent were B. At Amherst, more than 85 per cent of all grades are either A or B and at Vassar it's 81 per cent.

In an article in a recent issue of the Chronicle of Higher Education, California State College English teacher Edward M. White complained, "A cynical account of the general grading practice today would describe the C as an indication of attendance, the B as attendance with work done and the A grade as attendance with work done on time."

But while some faculty members agree that increased leniency in grading may be one of the reasons for the trend, they argue that higher grades also reflect more effective teaching methods, intense competition for placement in graduate schools and the fact that students are working harder.

Berry's World

The Doctor Says:

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
 DEAR DR. LAMB — We need recipes for low calorie meals. We have a child 11 years old with a muscle disease. He weighs 200 pounds. He must lose weight and keep it off to stay out of a wheelchair. Please send me information on what book to use and where to get it.
 DEAR READER — The secret is in preparing low calorie foods. A good way to do this is to limit the fat content in food preparation.
 Go to your library and ask them for my book, What You Need to Know About Food and Cooking for Health (Viking Press). There are recipes there for all the different types of food and ways to prepare them with the least amount of fat. The calorie content of the recipes with the number of calories from protein, carbohydrate and fat is listed with each recipe, and there are calorie value tables at the end of the book for all the common types of food.

 With this information you can plan well balanced, nutritious meals that are still low in calories and will help you with your feeding problem with your boy.

 Most people think of eliminating sugars, sweets and starches when they want to decrease calories, and this is one good way. However, there are often more calories in food from fats than from sweets. There are over twice as many calories in a pound of lard as there are in a pound of sugar. A similar situation exists compared to other fats. Many of these fats contain no useful vitamins or minerals or bulk and are just empty calories. Dairy fats and margarine contains vitamin A and D, but you won't get these in many fats. The best way, then, to eliminate excess calories that do not contribute to nutrition, other than add calories, is to eliminate excess fats, preferably in food preparation, and control the amount of concentrated sweets.

 This explains why high protein diets are often recommended. Foods rich in proteins but low in fat really do not contain a lot of calories.
 You should talk to your doctor about any special diet considerations for your son in relation to his basic medical problem.

 DEAR DR. LAMB — May I have your views on excess coffee drinking, 10 or more cups a day?
 DEAR READER — Sick, sick, sick. In these amounts it is the same as taking a number of "go pills" a day. I personally think one reason we have so many anxious people in our society is the excess use of coffee in part, and to a lesser extent the use of tea and cola drinks. The caffeine in these beverages is the main problem.
 For those who enjoy the taste of coffee, they can do very well on a decaffeinated brand and avoid the anxiety, tremors and many other problems associated with too much caffeine.

 Those who use regular coffee should not drink a second cup until at least an hour has passed after the first one and should limit their intake to no more than three or at the most five cups a day. I think even this amount is too much for many people. Fewer people would need tranquilizers if less regular coffee were consumed. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Food for Americans

Celery provides the difference

By AILEEN CLAIRE
Fresh celery is in good supply now and makes a stretch ingredient for soups, salads or main dishes. A Celery Meatball Stew is a different meat and noodle dish which is easy to make. It also is a dish that may be made ahead, except for cooking the noodles. Serve with a mixed green salad.

- SKILLET CELERY MEATBALL STEW
1 pound ground lean beef
¾ cup soft bread crumbs
½ cup finely minced onion, divided
2 tablespoons chopped celery leaves
¼ teaspoon salt, divided
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper, divided
1 egg, lightly beaten
¼ cup milk
2 tablespoons oil or bacon fat
1 garlic clove, finely minced
1 can (1 pound) tomatoes, broken up
2-3 cups water
3 cups celery cut into 1-inch pieces
½ cups egg noodles
½ teaspoon marjoram leaves, crumbled

In a large mixing bowl combine beef, bread crumbs, ¼ cup of the onion, celery leaves, ¼ teaspoon of the salt and 1-16th teaspoon of the black pepper. Add egg and milk. Mix lightly but well. Shape into 1½-inch meatballs (makes about 16). In a large skillet heat oil. Add meatballs. Cook until brown on all sides. Remove meatballs; set aside. Add garlic and remaining ¼ cup onion; saute for 3 minutes. Stir in tomatoes and water. Add celery, noodles, marjoram, remaining ½ teaspoon salt and 1-16th teaspoon black pepper. Bring to boiling point. Add reserved meatballs. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, until celery is crisp-tender and noodles are cooked, about 20 minutes.

New officers elected by Jay-C-ettes

A salad supper preceded a recent meeting for members of the Dixon Jay-C-ettes when the following new officers were elected: Mrs. Robert Fowkes, president; Mrs. Kent Dennis, vice president; Mrs. John Wexell, secretary; Mrs. Dennis Thomas, treasurer; Mrs. Michael Deets, Mrs. Thomas Kitson and Mrs. Michael Murphy, directors.

The new officers will be installed at a banquet with the Jaycees planned for May 31. Mrs. Dennis, retiring president, conducted a business session, which included a final report on the recent amblyopia screening conducted by the Jay-C-ettes. The report stated that 238 children took vision tests, and 258 children participated in the hearing tests.

Members approved a contribution to the Lee County Cancer Fund, and they also made plans to assist the Jaycees during a post-prom party May 30 at Emerald Hill Country Club for Dixon High School graduates.

Tentative plans were made for an ice cream social to be sponsored by the Jay-C-ettes during the Dixon Petunia Festival, and plans were also made to operate a concession stand at the Jaycees' Tractor Pull Contest July 2-3.

Mrs. Michael Otten attended the meeting as a guest, and a dinner in the Red Carpet Dining Room, Sterling, was planned for the next meeting June 5.

Piano recital by students of Tim Burrs

Piano students of Tim Burrs will present a recital at 7 p.m. Tuesday in Loveland Community House.

The eight students participating will be David DeVries, Michele Hunsberger, Lynn Hunsberger, Jacki Walters, Jefferson Elementary School students; Kari Zetterberg and Kathy Wilson, students at Washington Elementary School; Cathy Baker, who attends Madison Elementary School, and De Remey, Franklin Grove.

Mr. Burrs is a former student of Miss Marie Worley, and he graduated from Illinois State University, Normal, in 1971. He is currently employed as Youth and Music Director for the Bethel Evangelical Congregational Church, Dixon.

Friends and families of the piano students and all other interested persons are invited to attend the public recital, which will be followed by a reception honoring the students.

Favorite rose not grown in United States

Many admirers assume that every long-stemmed red rose they see is an American Beauty. Not so, says veteran horticulturalist Bill Meachem, who suggests that to find one you'd have to visit the choicest collectors' gardens in Europe.

The original American Beauty rose — it was a beautiful shade of red — came to America from France in 1886. It was grown for cut flowers in greenhouses years back, but hasn't been used for more than 65 years, Meachem explained.

"I doubt that there are any growing in the United States," said the gardening consultant, "it was very fragrant and had round buds that produced full flowers on long stems. It was not an ever-bearing rose as we know them today, but rather was listed as 'sometimes recurrent'."

The three red roses generally mistaken for the American Beauty are not related to the original American Beauty. The Forever Yours is the long-stemmed red rose seen most often in florist shops.

THIS UNUSUALLY attractive pantsuit combines slightly flared pants and a long-sleeved interlocked top trimmed with striped knit neckline, cuffs and waistband.

'Allspice' is not 'mixed spice'

It's not surprising that young cooks confuse "allspice" and "mixed spice." Allspice is a single spice which looks like an enlarged peppercorn and was called "allspice" because its heady fragrance suggests a blend of cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg.

"Mixed Spice" or, more properly "mixed pickling spice" is a mixture of whole allspice, mustard seed, bay leaves, red pepper, cinnamon, ginger and other spices. It is used in pickling and preserving meats and seasoning vegetables, relishes and sauces. It is good in stews and soups.

The allspice trees, called Pimenta officinalis by botanists, is native to the Caribbean, with Jamaica our main source. Because it looked like a peppercorn, early Spanish explorers called it "pimento," thinking they'd discovered pepper. In Jamaica, allspice is still called "pimento" and the United States Customs Department refers to it that way.

Allspice is sold in both whole and ground form. A pinch of ground allspice is delicious in old-fashioned fruit pies, mince pies, spice cakes and plum puddings, too, for in any desserts in which you'd ordinarily use cinnamon, cloves or nutmeg. It has many main-dish uses, too, for in Jamaica they wouldn't dream of cooking a soup, stew or roast without it. It gives delightful aroma to tomato or pea soup. Do try it with yellow vegetables such as candied sweet potatoes or carrots.

UCT Auxiliary plans dinner

The newly organized Ladies Auxiliary of UCT Council 558 has planned a "friendship dinner" for 7 p.m. Monday in Eddie's Supper Club, Grand Detour, when new officers will be installed and a special guest will be Mrs. Christine Yohe, Dillsburg, Pa.

Marine Corps League Auxiliary

The Dixon Area Unit of the Marine Corps League Auxiliary will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesday with Mrs. Dale Hussung, 604 Crawford Ave., Dixon. A "cosmetic party" will provide entertainment, and members needing transportation are asked to contact Mrs. Timothy Martin, 288-3204.

Dear Ann

by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My employer is an independent businessman who is caught in a tight economic crunch like so many others. He is also a sweet guy.

The people who owe him money aren't paying and he is in a temporary financial bind which is troubling him. While I know it's not the proper way to handle the problem, he is avoiding all phone calls from people he owes money. Frequently he goes out of town on business and I take the messages.

May I say a word to his creditors?

Dear Ones: I only answer the phone around here. I am not responsible for your collection problems, not am I interested in your opinion of my employer who owes you money. I can only deliver your messages. I can't put his finger in the dial and force him to return your calls.

Please save your four-letter words for HIM. If you aren't getting any results from your letters, cables and telegrams, don't yell at me. I only work here.—His Girl Friday

Dear Girl: Here's your message and I hope the "Dear Ones" take heed. You realize, of course, they are merely letting off steam when they yell at you. It's like the kid who loses in a game of marbles and comes home and kicks the cat because he's the one closest to the door.

Dear Ann Landers: This letter will be something of a "relief" for you. I don't have a problem. In fact, I've been blessed. I'm a mother who has worked with children, and come to know many young people well.

They need to know they are loved and cared about. They need someone to confide in. It is important that youth be listened to. Home should be a place to bring friends. A place to laugh and a place to cry.

I have a question for every parent who is reading this letter. Do you know where your child is at this moment? Do you care enough to find out? Who is he with? What is he doing? Could you be reached if he needed you? Are you setting a good example for your child? Do you demand something of him that you don't demand of yourself? Perhaps your problem lies right there.

Children need at least one parent who cares. Not a beautiful house or fine clothes. PLEASE take this to heart.—A Lover Of Young People

Dear Friend: Thank you for a provocative letter. If it made anyone uncomfortable I'm glad. It means you delivered your message.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I like to go out to dinner once a week with two other couples.

I can't drink and neither my husband nor I are big eaters. These two couples like their cocktails and they always order wine with the meal. My husband insists that we split the bill three ways. I do a slow burn when I figure the arithmetic in my head. We get stuck at least $5 every time we have dinner with these friends. Last night it was more like $8. Both women ordered crepe suzettes.

The other men have never suggested separate checks which I feel is wrong. They know good and well a three-way split is unfair to us. What should we do?—The Suckers In Long Island

Dear L.I.: Since your husband has already made it clear he will not ask for separate checks, leave the guy his dignity and figure the $5 or $8 is "amusement tax."

South Dixon Unit meeting with Mrs. Hank

A "unit's choice" meeting for the South Dixon Homemakers Extension Unit, held Tuesday with Mrs. Charles Hank, included a scramble luncheon.

Mrs. Hank, unit chairman, presided during an afternoon business session when the pledge of allegiance to the American flag was preceded by an article read by Mrs. Archie Severson on the origin and history of the pledge, which was written by Francis Bellamy in 1892. Changes have been made in the pledge, which was not given official congressional sanction until 1945.

Mrs. Harold Peterson presented an illustrated program on her recent trip to Iceland and Germany, and attending as guests were Mrs. Lloyd Shippert, Mrs. Arthur Schaffer, Mrs. Edward Schick and her daughters.

Unit members will participate in a county meeting planned for June 5 in the Lee County 4-H Center.

DESIGN SYSTEM uses stripes and rounded effects on foil in this design devised by David Winfield Willson to illustrate how wall coverings can add more architectural interest. He covered carpet cores (heavy cardboard) to create the "pillars" in the corner.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — I want to tell Mrs. H. L. C. how I mark a hem in a dress with no outside help. If the dress is too long find one in your closet that is the correct length and slip that garment over the one to be hemmed. Have both on a hanger and be sure the tops and seams are even. Hang over a door or elsewhere and make your hemline by pinning or marking along the bottom of the shorter hemline. Pin up the new hem and sew. It should be just right. The same can be done with pants.—MRS. K.W.S.

DEAR POLLY — and Mrs. H. L. C. — I, too, must mark most of my own hems so I bought a skirt marker that uses a white powder for the marking and is made to clamp on the edge of a door. Once I got this at the right level I made a small mark on the door to indicate where I should clamp on the marker. When I want to hem a dress I put it on and use this marker, pin up the hem, put the dress back on and check its evenness in the mirror. This works very well for me. — DIDI.

DEAR POLLY — I have a great idea to add to the suggestions concerning what Carol G. could do with her collection of all-occasion cards that she hates to throw away. My granddaughter made me a beautiful small wooden plaque. She bought the piece of wood at a lumber yard, stained it and then glued on a picture cut from a such a card. The entire thing was then shellacked and a brass hook put in the top to hang it by. Such plaques are just beautiful and make great gifts for any occasion. — MRS. R. G.

DEAR POLLY — When you have emptied a plastic bottle of dishwashing detergent fill it with water and put it in the car. There is enough detergent left to make soapy water that is very handy for washing dirty hands when out on the road.

Also, outdated credit cards make fine identification plates for luggage, notebooks or key chains. Cut out only your name and address and attach to the label with a good coating of household cement or punch a hole in it for a chain to go through. — MRS. L. W.

DEAR MRS. L. W. — Yours is indeed a good idea for using old credit cards except for the part about using on a key chain. I, too, had my name and address on my key chain until my car was stolen and a detective told me that was not a smart thing to do. The car thief had my name and address (along with my key) so burglarizing my house would be a cinch. The locks had to be changed. Also do not save whole old credit cards. Cut them up and throw them away. — POLLY.

Buy new plants

Sometimes it's wiser to buy new plants from a nursery rather than to propagate cuttings from your favorite fruit trees. Take the winter pears, the kind that are still green around Labor Day, but are sweet and juice nevertheless. New plants will bear quite quickly, while you might have to wait seven to ten years for cuttings to bear.

At least 70 senators moonlighting as speakers

WASHINGTON (AP) — At least 70 Senators report they moonlight on the lecture circuit, with last year's fees ranging up to $2,500 for a single speech.

Reports filed with the Senate show:

—Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., took an expense-paid trip to Bermuda last Oct. 31 to speak to an investors group, and was paid $2,000 for his efforts. Brooke is ranking Republican on the securities subcommittee.

—The chairman of the same subcommittee, Harrison A. Williams Jr. of New Jersey, got $2,500 for a talk to the Securities Industry Association last Dec. 4. The group represents stockbrokers, who are directly affected by legislation funneled through the subcommittee.

—The American Bankers Association paid $4,500 to Brooke for two speeches, $2,000 to Williams for one speech, $1,000 to Alan Cranston, D-Calif., and $1,000 to Bob Packwood, R-Ore. All are members of the Banking Committee.

Two senators more than doubled their regular salaries of $42,500 a year. One-time Watergate hearing star Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., topped the list with $49,650. His standard fee was $1,750 per speech. Republican Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon knocked down $45,677 speaking mainly to university and religious groups.

Eight senators reported that they used all or part of their outside earnings for charity or to cover unreimbursed office expenses. One of the top earners, Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., turned over all his $34,350 to charity.

For the most part, however, the speaking fees and other honorariums apparently went into the senators' pockets.

Honorariums have frequently been criticized as handouts in disguise, especially when they are large and come from groups with a special interest in the bill being handled by the recipients.

The latest reports are peppered with examples of such large payments:

—Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., who is second-ranking Democrat on the Finance Committee, got $2,000 from the "Ad Hoc Committee for an Effective Investment Tax Credit." Talmadge got another $2,000 from the American Council on Capital Gains and Estate Taxation. The Finance Committee handles tax matters.

—Talmadge also is chairman of the Agriculture and Forestry Committee, and he got $2,500 from the Fertilizer Institute, $1,000 from the Grocery Manufacturers Association, $2,500 from the Quality Bakers of America, $1,000 from the National Broiler Council, and $2,500 from the National Forest Products Association, which paid his way to Marco Island, Fla. for a speech.

—Vance Hartke, D-Ind., chairman of the subcommittee that will handle the Ford administration's proposals to promote competition among government-regulated truckers, got $1,500 from the Common Carrier Conference of the American Trucking Associations, which bitterly opposes the proposals. Hartke also got $1,000 from Atlas Van Lines, a regulated trucking company.

—John J. Sparkman, D-Ala., chairman of the housing subcommittee, got $1,500 from the National Association of Homebuilders.

Besides Baker and Hatfield, some of last year's other big earners were Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., $40,750; Talmadge, $32,165; Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, $29,550; Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, $28,800; Brooke, $28,700; Williams, $28,617; John V. Tunney, D-Calif., $25,450; Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., $25,190; and Bob Dole, R-Kan., $20,850.

In all, a score of senators reported getting more than $15,000 in honorariums last year.

Gains for workers seen

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The working man stands to make significant gains in this session of the General Assembly, says the chief labor spokesman in the Senate.

The reason, says Sen. Robert McCarthy, D-Decatur, is that labor interests are bargaining with the Democratic majority, rather than with Republicans, as the case has been in past years.

"It's a family discussion," McCarthy said in an interview, "not an armed confrontation between two camps."

This is the first year in decades that Democrats, who tend to be more favorable to labor issues, have held the majority in both houses over Republicans, who generally represent business interests.

"I'm optimistic based on the political division," McCarthy said. "Labor is being realistic with the Democratic party. They don't have to come in with high demands. They can come in with realistic bills."

Key labor bills which have been passed by committees and are pending in the House or Senate would:

—Increase benefits paid to unemployed workers.

—Increase benefits paid to workers who are injured on the job.

—Permit most public employees to bargain collectively and to strike.

—Prohibit professional strike breakers.

—Increase the minimum wage and broaden the coverage of the law.

If passed by the General Assembly, the measures are likely to be signed by Gov. Daniel Walker, who has described them as "vital needed labor legislation."

Sen. John Graham, R-Barrington, the minority spokesman on the Senate Labor and Commerce Committee, says the business community in Illinois would be hurt if the measures pass, but concedes that he sees a change in labor's approach.

"The next couple of weeks will tell the story," Graham said. "I think we're going to see a responsible attitude."

Baptist acquitted in pupil paddling

VALPARAISO, Ind. (AP) — The headmaster of a Baptist school in Chesterton has been acquitted of aggravated assault and battery in the disciplinary paddling of a 3-year-old pupil.

The Porter Circuit Court jury deliberated four hours Friday before finding Headmaster Eugene L. Yingling of Fairhaven Christian Academy innocent. Yingling, 40, and the Rev. Robert R. Voegtlin, 31, pastor of Fairhaven Independent Baptist Church, were charged in the paddling of Jeffery Klein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Klein of Valparaiso.

Judge Bruce Douglas granted a defense motion Thursday for a directed verdict of acquittal for Voegtlin. He was charged with conspiracy to commit a felony. The same charge against Yingling was dismissed.

Kenneth Klein testified Thursday his son was a preschool pupil at the academy for seven days last year and received three severe paddlings with an 18-inch-long paddle during that time.

Mrs. Klein testified a black and blue imprint of the paddle was visible on her son's backside. She said the child had "some broken blood vessels that looked like the blood was going to come out of his skin."

Held on forgery charge

Paula A. Ryan, 19, 518 W. First St., was arrested by Dixon Police Friday afternoon on a forgery charge.

A checkbook belonging to Bonnie Bass, 1411½ W. First St., was reported to have been taken from her residence Wednesday night. Ryan, a cousin of Bass, was claimed to be the only visitor to the Bass home that night, according to police. The same day, Ryan cashed a check at the Southside Zephyr service station, according to De Dee Meadows, 116 Eells Ave.

The $25 check, which cleared the City National Bank on Friday, was from Bass's checkbook, according to Neil Peterson, bank official.

Officers apprehended Ryan at her residence and were holding her in the Law Enforcement Center pending a court appearance Monday.

Massage parlor ruling appealed

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Massage parlor operators will appeal a ruling that upholds the city's ban on sexual massages by parlor employees, an attorney says.

"I don't think there's prostitution at the parlors," said Steve Beckett, attorney for two operators.

Circuit Judge Charles Iben upheld Friday the ordinance banning sexual massages, saying, "the activity testified to is prostitution."

Iben said that there is no reason to hold the sexual massage as any more socially desirable than any other form of sexual activity.

"Attempting such distinctions, some massage parlors apparently exist as a dodge to evade prostitution laws," said Iben.

"The law, which this court adopts, is that cities may legislate against prostitution," he said.

More than a dozen establishments or individuals are listed as offering massages in Peoria, nearly double the number of a decade ago and about one for every 10,000 residents.

The sexual massages given at some parlors have caused some officials to express fear that Peoria would become the sin city of central Illinois.

The massage parlor law was passed in September, but its enforcement was delayed pending a ruling on the constitutional issues involved.

A final order must still be issued by Iben, and the law will not be enforced until then, said Jack Teplitz, city attorney.

Two massage parlor operators and a parlor employee filed suit challenging the constitutionality of the ordinance. At a hearing in January, both operators testified that their parlors offered such massages. "If they want a complete massage...it is from the top of your head to the bottom of your foot," said Wesley Ward, one of the operators.

But Beckett argued at the hearing that "insofar as (the ordinance) makes that kind of massage a crime, it's unconstitutional."

The American Civil Liberties Union joined in objecting to the ordinance.

Nation warms up

By The Associated Press
Mid May mildness fanned over almost the entire nation today, pushing temperatures to their highest levels of the season through much of the mid-continent.

Readings in the 50s and 60s warmed most of country from the central Rockies to the Atlantic overnight. Freezing weather was confined to the upper reaches of the northern Rockies.

The mercury soared into the 80s Friday as far north as North Dakota and touched 90 in southeastern Colorado. The pronounced warmup was expected to spread eastward into the upper Mississippi Valley before nightfall.

But the warmth was a mixed blessing in western Colorado, where a growing snowmelt and spring showers created the potential of flooding. A flash-flood watch was issued for southwestern Colorado through the weekend.

Showers and thunderstorms ranged from the southern Rockies into Canada and extended into the northwestern Plains during the night. Similar weather was scattered through the Southeast.

A tornado smashed two mobile homes at Millen, Ga., south of Augusta late Friday, and large hail pelted an area northeast of Augusta. Severe thunderstorms also caused widespread minor damage in the Macon, Ga., area. No injuries were reported.

Clear skies were widespread

Historic preservation grants create task

The unexpected response to the Bird and Son, Inc. national Historic Grant Program from the 12-state Midwest region created a rather difficult task for the program's judges.

Four preservation authorities met in Chicago recently and reviewed applications from 167 area historical organizations for matching funds of up to $5,000. It was the fourth in a series of regional judgments prior to a final review by a national panel in Washington next month.

The grants are being awarded by Bird and Son for projects "designed to visibly improve the exterior of historic properties to make them more accessible, understandable or environmentally compatible to the public they serve."

The applications were among nearly 600 totaling over $3.2 million received in the five months since the program was launched by the East Walpole, Mass. manufacturer. Thirty-seven applications were received from Ohio, 28 from Iowa, 23 each from Illinois and Michigan, 16 from Indiana, 10 from Wisconsin, eight from Kentucky, seven each from Minnesota and Nebraska and two each from Montana and North Dakota.

The total amount requested by the applicants in the region was $667,804 and the average request was for $2,498. Because of the response to the program, judges spent several hours selecting the 21 finalists.

Cooperating in the effort to sort through the applications were Ms. Mary C. Means, Midwest field services representative, National Trust for Historic Preservation; Adrian D. Anderson, director of the Division of Historic Preservation of the Iowa State Historical Department; Ronald L. Ramsey, assistant professor, Department of Architecture at North Dakota State University; and Paul E. Sprague, director of the Illinois Historic Structures Survey.

Developed with the cooperation of the National Trust for Historic Preservation and the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities, the program was designed especially to aid those groups which might not ordinarily qualify for private or government funding.

Applications came in from every state in the union; among the more unusual requests for funds were proposals to preserve the first Russian Orthodox Church in Kodiak, Alaska and the Kailua-Kona palace of the ancient monarchs in Hawaii.

have to be turned down.

"Naturally we are quite pleased with the response to the program, Heim said, "but the decisions that will have to be made will undoubtedly be somewhat painful. One of the aims of the program, however, will be to encourage business and industry to become involved in preservation activities. We hope that our files will serve as a resource and that this long neglected field will get more attention in the future."

A total of six regional judgments by recognized preservation authorities have been held during the past month in Boston, Philadelphia, Charleston, New Orleans and San Francisco, as well as in Chicago. A final review will take place in Washington by a national panel of authorities and the grant recipients will be announced at a news conference the first week of June.

Bird & Son, Inc., considered one of the nation's foremost producers of building materials and industrial machinery, was formed in 1795 by George Bird and is among the 31 manufacturing firms established on or before that year that are still in existence. George Bird founded a small paper mill on the banks of the Charles River in Needham, Mass. which hand-processed five reams of mottled paper daily. Later, he began making wrapping papers and bank note papers, and in 1817 opened a small mill on the Neponset River in a town known as South Dedham. His first patent was signed by President John Quincy Adams and Secretary of State Henry Clay.

"Bird and Son has been around for quite some time now," Heim said, "so the idea of funding historical societies appealed to us right from the beginning. We hope that in this way, many will be able to share in our pleasure."

Four of the midwestern United States' authorities on historic preservation sift through some of the 167 applications submitted from 12 central states to the Bird & Son, Inc. National Historic Grant Program. The judges are (left to right): Paul E. Sprague, director of the Illinois Historic Structures Survey; Ronald Ramsey, assistant professor in the Department of Architecture, North Dakota State University; Mary C. Means, Midwest field services representative for the National Trust for Historic Preservation; and Adrian D. Anderson, director of the Iowa State Historical Department Division of Historic Preservation.

Wakeley, Cowley qualify for state

MOLINE—Randy Wakeley and Duane Cowley earned the right to advance to the state Illinois High School Association Class AA track meet at Charleston, next weekend, with performances in the District meet, held here, Friday.

Wakeley grabbed a first place in the 120-yard high hurdles in :14.7 to earn automatic qualification. Each first and second Cowley was fifth in the mile but qualified with a clocking of 4:26.9, to lower his own Dixon High School record. Cowley ran a 4:27.4 mile in the NCIC meet at Sterling last weekend. The state qualifying standard was 4:28.

Wakeley missed a chance in the low

Foolish Pleasure seeks win

BALTIMORE (AP)—Foolish Pleasure, seeking to become the 19th horse in history to win both the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, headed a field of 10 today in the 100th running of the second leg of racing's Triple Crown.

However, if he wins the Preakness, the Belmont still loomed ahead for the once-beaten son of What A Pleasure in his pursuit of the Triple Crown. Seven times between the Triple Crown sweeps of Citation in 1949 and Secretariat in 1973 the same horse won the Derby and Preakness only to fail in the Belmont.

Expected to give Foolish Pleasure a strong challenge in the Preakness were Avatar and Diabolo, second and third to John L. Greer's colt in the Derby two weeks ago; Native

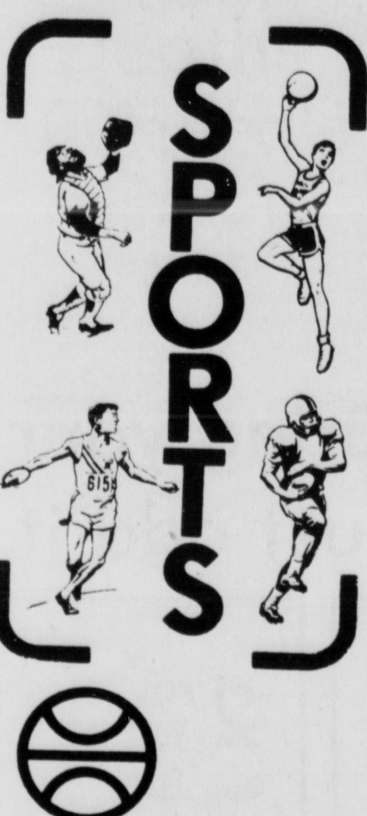

Guest, an invader from the West Coast, and Singh, unbeaten this season.

Also going to the post were Darby Dan Farm's Prince Thru Art, Anthony Leggio's Bold Chapeau, Mrs. Robert Lehmann's Master Derby, Thomas Evans' Just The Time and Maxwell Gluck's Media, the last two a betting entry.

Foolish Pleasure went into the Preakness as winner of 11 of his 12 starts, losing only in the March 29 Florida Derby when both Prince Thru Art and his stablemate, Sylvan Place, beat him to the wire.

Avatar, with veteran Bill Shoemaker on his back, was 1½ lengths behind Foolish Pleasure in the Derby, the only time the two have locked horns on the race track.

In that race, Avatar and

In baseball Invitational Redmen are second

By JIM FOX

Telegraph Sports Writer CHADWICK — McHenry bunched five hits and six walks in two innings for nine runs as the Scots downed Sauk Valley 11-5 capturing the 1975 Sauk Valley Invitational championship, here Friday evening.

McHenry defeated Highland 8-4 in the first game of the second day of tournament action assuring the Scots a position in the finals. Sauk then eliminated Highland 7-1 on a four hitter by Rico Wells earning the right to face the Scots men in the championship game.

In the Sauk-Highland contest the Redmen combined clutch hitting with strong pitching as the Cougars were held to four hits while Sauk Valley rapped out 10 safeties. Sauk knocked two teams out of the tournament in pursuit of the finals. Clinton was eliminated by Sauk Thursday night as was Highland Friday afternoon.

John O'Brien opened the second frame on a single up the middle and scored on two successive errors. Doug Mitchell raced across the plate on a RBI single by Randy Ellmaker.

Wells hurled a complete game in allowing only four hits while giving up a lone unearned run in his seven innings of work. The righthander walked one and fanned three in picking up his second win in five decisions.

Sauk tacked on two more in the fourth on a Mitchell base hit, run scoring double off the bat of right fielder Mike Dienslake and an infield single from Randy Paisley. Jerry Janssen belted a two run homer over the right field fence off losing pitcher Ron Norman in the fifth to ice the game for Sauk and set up the championship match.

Paisley was given the nod as starting pitcher against McHenry's Steve Himpleman, as the Scot's ace, Larry Hirschey was used against and defeated Highland in earlier action.

Paisley had control problems as the leftied walked four batters in the first inning that aided McHenry in scoring early runs. Doug Freund received a one out base on balls, and after a force out, Paisley walked Mike Philpot and Himpleman to load the bases. The initial run of the game scored on a double steal as Lee Frick raced home on a throw down to second in an attempt to catch a stealing Philpot. Bob Vitek followed with a bloop single between second baseman O'Brien and rightfielder Kevin Arduini that plated Philpot. After a fourth walk, Jeff Lee shot a soft line drive off the glove of O'Brien to chase two more runs home.

"We got a couple breaks in the first inning that really helped," commented McHenry coach Gus Williams after the game. "Our two hits just barely made it through. If they (hits) had not had eyes we would have scored only one run instead of four."

Sauk came back in the bottom of the first to cut the margin in half as Paisley and Craig Robinson opened the frame with back-to-back singles. A Himpleman wild pitch advanced the runners before Gary Stewart's deep centerfield sacrifice fly sent the first Redmen home. Robinson scored on a two base hit by O'Brien.

McHenry knocked Paisley off the mound in the second inning as the Scots men put the game away with five runs. The base on balls did Paisley in a gain as the Sauk hurler walked Randy McNally and Freund to open the inning. McNally scored on an error and Philpot plated a pair on a single up the middle that brought reliever Jim Baumgart in the game. Himpleman greeted his new counterpart with a run scoring single and eventually scored the fifth and final run of the inning on an RBI safety by Vitek. The Redmen were held in check after the two run first inning through the fifth before Sauk scored twice in the sixth on a bases loaded single by Ellmaker. Stewart doubled home Paisley in the seventh to complete Sauk's scoring for the day.

"We played good baseball in this tournament," stated Williams, whose team had won only six games before entering the invitational. With a sweep of the winner's bracket McHenry finishes the season at 9-19. "We started out slow but we came around toward the end of the season. This championship wraps up a successful second-half of the season."

Commenting on Sauk's performance in the tournament coach Ron Hartje offered praise to his players stating they played "serious baseball" and looked like a team that really wanted to win the invitational. Splitting four games in the two days of action, the Redmen close the season with a 10-19 record.

Ali knocks out Lyle

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Claiming that at 33 he is a young man, Muhammad Ali says he wants to give Joe Bugner, Joe Frazier and George Foreman a shot at his world heavyweight title before the year is out.

All did not look so young for 10 rounds Friday night, when 33-year-old Ron Lyle appeared to be winning their title fight. That all ended in the 11th, when Ali unleashed a barrage of head punches that left the ex-convict helpless and finished, his one shot at fame and fortune ended in a few seconds of speed and power.

Ali, who had a bruise over his left eye as he came out for the 11th round—one in which he told his handlers between rounds he would finish Lyle—credited his new strategy of wearing down his foe for the swift ending to a dull fight.

"I knew I was behind because he had thrown the most punches, but I came out serious to win all the rest of the rounds," Ali said of his attitude after 10 rounds, most of which found him doing next to nothing except inviting Lyle to hit him. At 22½, Ali was the heaviest he's been for his 14 title fights, and he gave a lethargic performance in the first four rounds.

"I was using my 'Rope-aDope' strategy and then I went to the 'Mirage,'" he said. Ali said he wanted Lyle to wear himself out pounding him on the ropes, but when Lyle refused to fall for that, he went to the center of the ring for the "Mirage—like someone on the desert thinking they can see water and only find sand."

Lyle, weighing 219, denied he was helpless at the end; he said the fight should have continued. That is not the way it looked to others.

Disqualification in Girls' mile run

CHARLESTON, Ill. (AP) — Oak Park-River Forest is the first day leader, but its hopes for an Illinois State High School Association's Girls' State Track and Field team title are less certain due to a disqualification in a key event.

Track officials disqualified Lisa Hamity in a semifinal mile run Friday after they said she stepped on a fallen Park Ridge runner, Melody Miller.

The mishap occurred on the last lap of the race and Miss Miller recovered in time to finish second. Oak Park protested the decision, claiming there had been no contact between the runners, but the protest was denied.

Miss Hamity was the 1974 winner in the mile run.

The finals in the third annual girls' tournament begins at 12:30 p.m. today.

Oak Park led all teams with five individual and two relay team qualifiers. Second was Cahokia with four individuals and one relay team still in the running, followed by Illiopolis, Chicago Calumet, Peoria Richwoods and Springfield Southeast.

Five state records were set, a sixth was established in a new event and two records were tied in Friday's preliminary action.

Records were set in the 880-yard relay, 110-yard low hurdles, 440-yard relay, the shot put and the discus.

Miss Miller established a record of 11:31.5 in the two-mile run, which was held in the girls' meet for the first time.

Tammy Effington of Washington established a new low mark for the 110-yard low hurdles with a time of :14.7. Effington and Pam Hooks of Chicago Heights-Bloom are considered the chief threats to Debbie Kilhoffer, the defending champion from Illiopolis, who had established the old record of :15.2 in 1974.

A Cahokia relay team set a record of 1:43.8 in the 880-yard relay. The old record was 1:46.1.

A Chicago Calumet team completed the 440-yard relay in a record :49.5, bettering the old mark by a half-second.

Sue Fortune of Geneseo tossed the discus 118 feet and Mary Anne Johnson of Hoffman Estates hit a new distance of 43 feet 9 inches in the shot put, both efforts setting records.

Kimm Schofield of Springfield Southeast, the defending champion in the 100-yard dash and the long jump, tied the state record of :05.9 gn the 50-yard dash. LaTayne Bruce of Freeport also ran in :05.9, a record which Miss Schofield set in 1973.

Chris Russell of Thornton Fractional South equalled the :10.8 record for the 80-yard low hurdles.

Small schools feel pressure

By HAL BOCK

AP Sports Writer

An economic squeeze is pinching athletic programs in the nation's largest colleges and universities. The situation is as bad, if not worse, in the smaller institutions of higher education.

Smaller schools have smaller budgets and less ambitious programs, but they still feel the bite. Take, for example, the case of tiny Stonehill College, a Roman Catholic school of 2,200 students located in Easton, Mass.

Stonehill never has had a deficit in its general operating budget. It always has had a deficit in its athletic budget.

Although small in size, the school maintains high academic aspirations. There is a combined five-year liberal arts and engineering program that operates under a cooperative agreement with the University of Notre Dame, which The Rev. Ernest J. Bartell, Stonehill's president, calls "our sister institution."

Academically, the two may be related. Athletics is quite another matter. Notre Dame is one of the traditional major powers in American collegiate sports. Stonehill is not.

"Our athletic program has always run a deficit," said The Rev. Bartell. "In fact the athletic department must be completely subsidized by the college because there is only token income from athletic events.

For the current year, we will expend $137,000 on athletics and we anticipate revenue of only $2,000. Five years ago, the athletic department budget was $87,000, and the department had an income of $1,500."

When you have less money to spend, you spend less money. That has been the case at Jacksonville, Ala., State. There is no projected deficit in sports because, by law, a state school cannot legally have a deficit. But the entire athletic budget has been cut by 10 per cent.

"We are not changing our athletic emphasis," said Dr. Ernest Stone, president of Jacksonville State. "We are simply running a 'tight belt' program in an effort to have all the absolute necessities for athletics and the entire university program. We find that it is possible to save money with careful and frugal administration."

Ohio Dominican is located in Columbus, Ohio. The other school in town is Ohio State. After geography, the similarity ends.

Thomas Scholl, athletic director at Ohio Dominican, reports a department budget of about $25,000. The only revenue-producing sport is basketball, and this year, instead of producing, basketball lost about $7,000. Scholl said operating costs have doubled in five years.

"We're not going to have the growth of as full a range of sports as we'd like," said Scholl. "We have four sports for women and four for men. We're going to be frozen in that position as long as the financial picture stays the same."

The Rev. Daniel C. O'Connell, president of St. Louis University, drives a Volkswagen and has turned down a $500 electric typewriter and an executive suite chair for his office, so you know how he feels about saving money.

There has been talk of eliminating varsity basketball at St. Louis, but Father O'Connell has assured that the sport will continue for the 1975-76 season and after that so long as it remains fiscally sound. St. Louis' other major sports are soccer and hockey, and they, too, will continue as long as they operate on a balanced budget.

"All varsity sports will have to stand on their own two feet or two skates, or whatever," he said. "We'll wait until the public proves its point. If people do not attend games, we cannot break even."

At George Washington University, the athletic budget was cut in half seven years ago when the school dropped football. Now its teams are cutting back in travel with games limited to a 50-to-70-mile radius of the school. American University teams have a bit more latitude, but not that much. Their games are limited to 300 miles except for baseball.

Ted Kjolhede, athletic director at Central Michigan, said his department is well aware of the economic problem. "We've tried to be frugal in all areas," he said. "We've made uniforms last longer, for example."

Frills, such as banquets, have been reduced, and trips are kept to a minimum, both for recruiting and competing. CMU doesn't recruit out of state and it carefully weighs all factors involved before sending a team or player to a post-season competition.

"We're not naive," said Kjolhede. "We know the university may have to go into an austerity program, but if CMU was to strike out alone it would lose television money and bowl pos-

TENNIS FOR THE FUN OF IT

BY ROD LAYER & ROY EMERSON

What can the average player do to improve his concentration during a match?

Rod: Well, first of all, concentration is a problem for everybody in tennis — not just "average players."

Roy: Right. Nearly all the errors that take place in a professional match come about because of a loss of concentration. The big problem, really, is reminding yourself to concentrate when you're out there playing a match. I start thinking about concentration the minute I walk out on the court, reminding myself to think about the basics: watching the ball, getting set early, footwork.

Rod: One thing I find helpful when it comes to concentration is to force myself to play the match stroke by stroke, point by point. I try not to think about the game, or the set or the match, but to treat each point as if it were set point.

Don Sutton loses no-hitter, game

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Nobody's perfect. Not even Don Sutton.

The Los Angeles Dodger right-hander who has a lot on the ball came close to pitching a perfect game Thursday night, but fell apart in the last two innings.

First he lost his no-hitter. Then he lost his shutout. And finally, he lost the game to the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3-2.

"Pittsburgh is an explosive club," said Sutton. "When they hit, it's like an epidemic. It runs through the whole ball club."

For 7 1/3 gorgeous innings, Sutton was in complete control with a 1-0 lead. And it looked like that was all he was going to need. He struck out seven, and allowed only two balls to be hit out of the infield. The Pirates got nothing resembling a hit.

But with one out in the eighth, Richie Zisk hit a hot grounder just to the left of third baseman Ron Cey and into left field for the Pirates' first hit. Dave Parker followed with a line single to center and Manny Sanguillen singled to tie the score.

Sutton gave up his fourth hit to Rennie Stennett in the ninth and then his fifth, a home run by Al Oliver. As the ball flew into the right field pavilion in Dodger Stadium, there went Sutton's chances of winning.

"It's no disgrace losing to these guys," Sutton said of the hard-hitting Pirates.

In the other National League games, the Montreal Expos beat the Cincinnati Reds 4-2; the Philadelphia Phillies routed the Atlanta Braves 12-8; the New York Mets trimmed the Houston Astros 10-2; the San Diego Padres beat the Chicago Cubs 8-2 and the San Francisco Giants defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 4-3 in 10 innings.

After Oliver put the Pirates ahead 3-1 in the top of the ninth, the Dodgers scored a run off Dave Giusti in their half of the inning on Steve Garvey's single, an infield out and a single by Cey. Bill Buckner then grounded into a game-ending double play.

Expos 4, Reds 2
Pepe Manguel keyed two rallies and extended his hitting streak to 12 games, leading Montreal over slumping Cincinnati.

With the score tied 1-1 in the fourth inning, Manguel beat out a single down the first base line and went to third base on singles by Mike Jorgensen and Larry Bittner off Cincinnati right-hander Jack Billingham, 3-3. Tony Scott then lashed a grounder to Joe Morgan at second base to give the Expos the go-ahead run.

Phillies 12, Braves 8
Two-run homers by Mike Schmidt, pitcher Larry Christenson and Larry Bowa in a six-run second inning helped streaking Philadelphia to its victory over Atlanta. It was the Phillies' fifth straight victory.

Ed Kranepool's two-run double sparked a four-run first inning and Rusty Staub and Dave Kingman homered, powering New York past Houston.

Derrel Thomas led off the 10th inning with a triple and later scored when Luis Melendez dropped Willie Montanez' line drive in shallow center, giving San Francisco a tense victory over St. Louis.

The manager of the Kansas City Royals signed in at Boston's Fenway Park Friday night. That is, he signed his lineup card. In fact, he signed several of them. But the batting order he handed to umpire Bill Deegan wasn't the same one the Royals used to beat the Red Sox 5-2.

On the lineup card McKeon turned in, he had Amos Otis batting third. But when the game began there was Otis in the No. 2 spot. And he came up with a key single in Kansas City's three-run third inning, with two runs scoring on the hit and an ensuing error by left fielder Bernie Carbo.

The incident left the Boston faces as red as their sox. Had Manager Darrell Johnson protested, Otis would have been called out and the runners ordered back to first and third. And since Hal McRae followed with a ground-rule double, the Royals would have scored only one run in the inning instead of three.

Brewers 3, Twins 1

The Brewers bunched all five of their hits in the fourth inning. After Dave Goltz retired the first nine Milwaukee batters, Don Money opened the fourth inning with a single and scored the tying run on a double by Bill Sharp. Bobby Mitchell's single made it 2-1 and George Scott also singled. After Hank Aaron flied out, Darrell Porter delivered a run-scoring single.

A's 4, Yankees 2
Vida Blue became the first eight-game winner in the majors by hurling a seven-hitter for his sixth consecutive triumph. Billy Williams drove in the tying run in the fifth inning with a long sacrifice fly on which he was robbed of a possible homer and then doubled to set up the go-ahead run in the seventh.

Rangers 10, Tigers 3
Tom Grieve's two-run homer and Toby Harrah's three-run double paced the rout of Detroit ace Mickey Lolich. Texas kayoed Lolich during a five-run third-inning outburst. Grieve's homer followed a single by Jim Fregosi.

Cubs lose

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Bobby Tolan, out of the San Diego starting lineup for nine games, came to San Diego Stadium and was shocked to learn he was replacing a .455 hitter. But the surprise was on the Chicago Cubs.

The game represented an interesting move on the part of San Diego Manager John McNamara. He benched left-fielder Gene Locklear, who is averaging .455, and replaced him with Tolan, who was batting .211.

But a bunt by Tolan set up a two-run single by Dave Winfield in the first inning. Tolan singled home a run in the second inning and set up a sixth-inning run with another hit as San Diego collected an 8-2 victory over the Cubs.

"I can sympathize with Gene," Tolan said later. "The way he's been hitting, I was shocked to come to the park and find out I was starting."

"Sure, Locklear has been hot," McNamara explained, "but Tolan got off to a slow start last year and then he got hot and did a great job for us. I felt like it was time to put him in the lineup again. He can do a lot of things to help win a game."

Mike Ivie hit two singles and a triple. And Enzo Hernandez had two and drove in three runs for San Diego.

However, the biggest surprise of all was reserved for Joe McIntosh. Tearing out of a prolonged offensive slump, the Padres spotted the 23-year-old right-hander a 6-0 lead in the first three innings and he went on to beat the Chicago Cubs with a six-hitter.

The Padres, who had scored only 17 runs in their last eight games, snapped a two-game losing streak by pummeling Bill Bonham, 3-3, Ken Frailing, Bobby Locker and Oscar Zamora for 13 hits in the rout against the Eastern Division leaders.

"McIntosh could be 6 and 0 instead of 4 and 2," pitching coach Tom Morgan said after the 6-2, 185-pounder walked one and struck out one to bring his earned run average for the season to 1.64.

White Sox rally for 3-2 win

CHICAGO (AP) — Rich Gossage finally learned he didn't know it all and as a result he's become one of the top relief pitchers in the American League.

In fact, Manager Chuck Tanner calls Gossage "the best right-handed relief pitcher in the league."

Gossage turned in another brilliant performance Friday night and the Chicago White Sox put on a last-ditch three-run rally in the ninth inning to edge the Cleveland Indians 3-2.

Gossage gained the victory, his second, to go along with his five saves and a flashy 0.91 earned-run average. That's a far cry from a 4-6 record last season with a 4.13 ERA.

"Two years ago I refused to go to winter ball," said Gossage. "And that was the biggest mistake I made. I thought I knew it all. Last year I went and things turned around for me. I started, worked in long relief and short relief. It really helped."

"I worked on my breaking ball and as a result lost something off my fast ball but the fast ball is back and I'm throwing strikes," said Gossage. "Also, I'm thinking a lot more out there. If I find myself working too fast, I back off and slow it down."

Gossage came in with two on and one out in the sixth inning Friday night and yielded but one hit in the final 3 2/3 innings but it seemed to be going for naught as the White Sox were being held to three hits by rookie right-hander Jim Kern.

But Kern walked leadoff man Bill Melton to start the ninth and Manager Frank Robinson figured the youngster had pitched long enough.

Bullpen ace Tom Buskey came in but yielded three straight singles as the Sox pushed across a run. Dennis Eckersley finished the job when he hit pinch batter Buddy Bradford to force in the tying run and walked Jorge Orta to force in the winning run.

"Buskey's done a good job for us all season," said Robinson. "Tonight was just one of those things. Kern was pitching well in the seventh and eighth. But I didn't like the way he pitched to Melton in the ninth. He had thrown 142 pitches and he had done all he could for us."

Kern walked six batters but also had nine strikeouts. Four times in the game he ended innings with strikeouts when the Sox had runners on base.

The two teams meet again tonight with Jim Kaat, 5-1, going against Fritz Peterson, 3-3.

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Saturday, May 17, the 137th day of 1975. There are 228 days left in the year. This is Armed Forces Day.
Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1954, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that racial segregation in public schools is unconstitutional.
On this date —
In 1666, Congregationalists from Connecticut founded Newark, N.J.
In 1792, the New York Stock Exchange was founded.
In 1803, the first patent for a reaper was granted to Richard French and John Hawkins of New Jersey.
In 1875, the first Kentucky Derby was run at Louisville, Ky.

In 1940, the Nazis occupied Brussels, Belgium in World War II.
In 1961, Cuba's Premier Fidel Castro offered to exchange prisoners captured in the Bay of Pigs invasion for U.S. heavy tractors.
Ten years ago: In Moscow, U.S. Ambassador Foy Kohler walked out of a diplomatic reception at the Bulgarian Embassy after the U.S. was attacked for what was called "criminal adventure" in Vietnam.
Five years ago: Norwegian explorer Thor Heyerdahl set sail from Morocco on a papyrus boat in his second attempt to prove that ancient Egyptians could have reached the New World about 4,000 to 5,000 years ago.

The Caucus Club of Boston was a cabal that dominated Boston politics, meeting as early as 1724 and led by Deacon John Adams, father of Samuel Adams. The Caucus Club is credited with defeating the conservative colonists and expediting the movement toward independence. The World Almanac notes that offshoots of the Caucus Club were the Loyal Nine and the Boston Sons of Liberty.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE.
CASE D-660: Arnold P., aged 35, is treasurer of his church. "Dr. Crane," he began, "we are having a difficult time raising money for our budget."

"So I am trying to figure out ways by which to stay out of the red ink."

"And I think we could pare down the money that goes for soloists, instrumentalists and choral arrangements."

"For it takes $16,000 a year just for our music expense!" "Yet our congregation responds only halfheartedly to the music."

"In fact, I am sure if we dispensed with the choir and Music Director altogether, but let volunteers from the congregation lead the singing, we'd zoom in audience participation."

"Why, the song leader at our men's service club noon luncheon could do a far better job of enlisting enthusiastic singing from our congregation, if he were to stand in the pulpit."

"So why don't our churches depend more on volunteer leadership of congregational singing?"

"And feature children's groups from the Sunday School, instead of robed, paid choir."

DEDICATED MUSICIANS
Musicians are a dedicated group, who come out for practice, rain or shine, and try to improve church worship.

But mere dedication is not enough! For you can be dedicated to the wrong system and thus go down in failure.

Christ's fishermen were likewise experienced in handling their nets and certainly dedicated to their piscatorial science, for their living depended on their daily catch of fish.

But when Jesus saw they had labored all night in vain, did Christ scold them for using an old scow or patched nets?

Did He taunt them for not having gone back to Vocational School for a refresher course in the latest fishing techniques?

Certainly not! They were eminently qualified to be outstandingly successful, except for one thing.

And that applies to paid musicians, plus 50 per cent of our clergymen, too!

For they lacked the right outlook!

Jesus merely told them to use their present dedicated talents but take a new viewpoint, which meant throw their nets on the other side of the boat.

What happened? They landed such an avalanche of fish that even the nets broke!

Same would be true of you psychologically "blind" pastors and church musicians if you'd just watch your audiences and learn what it takes to grip their vital interest, bring tears to their eyes and give them a momentary glimpse at eternal verities!

But you soporific clergy disdain Dale Carnegie courses because Dale Carnegie didn't have a Ph.D. degree!

And you apparently feel it is beneath your dignity to enroll in a Toastmaster's Club, though lawyers, physicians and other learned people eagerly do so.

And you musicians parrot the same worship of music for its own sake that your professors taught you in Music School.

Music, as well as oratory, are not ends in themselves but means to arousing an audience to a lofty emotional peak!

Alas, only about 25 per cent of clergymen are topnotchers and only the musicians attached to revivalistic campaigns really inspire congregations!

Send for my booklet "Public Platform Psychology," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents!

Mint chief pitches pennies

CHICAGO (AP) — Mary T. Brooks, director of the United States Mint, rolled up her sleeves and pitched pennies against bank executives.

It was her pitch Thursday to get 30 billion coppers back into circulation.

"When I was younger I pitched pennies and I even put them on railroad tracks," said Mrs. Brooks, who quips that she is over 39. She is the widow of former U.S. Sen. C. Wayland

Brooks of Illinois and the third woman in history to direct the mint's operations.

"We've got to get 30 billion pennies back into circulation," she said. "We've got to change the public's thinking that a penny isn't worth anything. It's the taxpayer who must bear the cost of minting new ones and the current production price is $7.50 per 1,000."

Mrs. Brooks said that after the oil embargo "big time collectors, banks, held pennies back watching copper prices or thinking the country would quit minting pennies."

"Now is the time for them to unload," she said. "Copper prices seem to be going down and we certainly are not going to stop making pennies."

"Some people say a penny doesn't buy anything these days. But the demand is there. For instance, perhaps most of them are used for sales taxes, which are measured in fractions concerning pennies, and how many merchandisers have items for sale at say $2.99?"

"One of the things about pennies is that people don't like to carry them in their pockets," Mrs. Brooks continued. "Did you ever lift a sack of pennies? And men, especially, will come home and toss their change on the table. When they pick it up again they usually leave the pennies there. And they wind up in a coffee can or piggy bank."

Mrs. Brooks said the idea is to spend them. "I spend them as fast as I can," she said. "I'm a cash register snooper. I carry them in my purse and when I buy anything and the cash register rings I'll turn in say five or 10 of them for a nickel or a dime. Let me look in my purse now. Yep, I've got about a nickel's worth."

Mrs. Brooks said the 30 billion pennies needed to be retrieved because of the demand would cost $225 million to mint. To continue meeting the demand, she said, 43 million are being minted daily compared with 35 million a year ago. Nine billion were minted last year and seven billion the year before, she said.

"Spending pennies instead of keeping them in a mason jar is such a simple way to help."
